Social and Personal

One of the loveliest affairs of the winter season was the dance given last evening at the Country Club of Virginia. It was in honor of Miss Josephine Pinckney, of Charleston, S. C., daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Pinckney, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and about 150 members of the younger society set were invited to meet there. The clubhouse was hung with a drapery of Southern smilax and yellow blossoms, and wicker stands of carnations and tulips were used everywhere. An orchestra played for the dancing, and supper was served at 11 o'clock. The married friends of the hosts, who chaperoned the dance, were seated at the large central table, decorated with a big basket of jonquils, caught with tulle, and the guests had places at the smaller tables, also decorated with tulle. Miss Pinckney received with the guests of honor, and palms, bay trees and bright spring flowers formed an effective background for the pretty gown worn by the girls present.

Miss Pinckney is to-day for her home in Charleston, and Miss Kaley will remain in Richmond some time longer. Both have been much entertained during their visit here, and some very handsome functions have been incident to their stay.

The Governor of Virginia and Mrs. William Hodges Mann were guests of the large and beautiful luncheon given at the Country Club yesterday by Colonel Ralph B. Neale. The table was set with a flat placard of white and red, festooned with tulle and the candles were shaded in rose and crystal. The dining room, where the luncheon was served, was decorated in baskets of pink blossoms and bouquets of Parma roses and gardenias marked the places of the guests.

Misses Beatrice Kaley, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Josephine Pinckney, of Charleston, S. C., were guests of honor at another luncheon given at the Commonwealth Club yesterday. Decorations were in tall vases of Golden Gate roses.

Mrs. Stuart Woodward gave a small concert at her apartment in Graham Court yesterday afternoon.

Pretty Home Wedding.
Lovely spring flowers decorated the dining room of the home of Mrs. George Armstrong Gibson, 502 West Franklin Street, last evening at 9 o'clock for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Mary Gibson, to Jesse Homan Farber, of Meadeville, Pa. The ceremony was very quietly celebrated, with only the immediate families and a few friends present. The bride, who wore a gown of white tulle and lace, and carried a bouquet of white and pink roses, was escorted by her brother, Mr. Gibson, who gave her away. She carried a presentation bouquet of white and pink roses, and a huge silver bowl of jonquils and pink roses caught with yellow and red, and a large white and pink ribbon, was used on the table in the dining room. The mantels were decorated with white and pink flowers, and a large white and pink ribbon, was used on the table in the dining room. NEWS OF ASHLAND

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Ashland, Va., January 28.—A meeting was held in the town hall, at which about seventy citizens of Ashland were in attendance. It was called for the purpose of discussing the draft of a charter for the town of Ashland, which had been prepared by a committee of the town council. An organization was being formed by selecting Walter Snyder as chairman and Mayor Henry G. Ellis as secretary. The purpose for which the meeting was called was stated by the chairman, and upon motion of Hill Carter, an adjournment was taken until Monday night. In the meantime, this tentative charter will be printed for distribution among the citizens of Ashland, so that they may have some knowledge of its provisions and be able at the next meeting to act intelligently upon the plan.

Mrs. Ruth Weeks, of Alexandria, is the guest of Mrs. M. F. Fisher, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Williams, of this city, are spending some time in Ashland. Mr. and Mrs. S. Godfrey Henkel have returned to Staunton, after a short stay in this city.

PRINCE OF DENMARK IS MARRIED AT TURIN

Eldest of Four Sons of Prince Waldemar, Ranking Officer of Danish Navy.

BY LA MARQUESE DE FENTON.

PRINCE AAGE of Denmark, who has just contracted a morganatic marriage at Turin, with Matilda, only daughter of Count Calvi di Bergoglio, until quite recently the Italian minister plenipotentiary at Copenhagen, the eldest of the four sons of Prince Waldemar, the ranking officer of the Danish navy, and youngest brother of Queen Alexandra, of the Dowager Empress of Russia, of the Duchess of Cumberland, and of the late King Frederick VIII. of Denmark.

Prince Waldemar lost his wife five years ago. She was Marie of Orleans, daughter of that Robert Due de Chartres, who with his elder brother, the late Comte de Paris, served on the staff of General McClellan during the American War of the Union.

Princess Marie received a very large dowry on her marriage, also had large bequests from her grandfather, the childless Duc d'Aumale, and other relatives; and it was stipulated in the marriage contract that her money at her death should go exclusively to her children. Prince Aage, who is now twenty-seven years of age, is a very rich man, indeed, and financially speaking, altogether independent of his father, and of his first cousin, the present King of Denmark.

Of course, the latter, as chief of the reigning house of Denmark, exercises a certain amount of authority over him, which might take the form of depriving him of his status and prerogatives of a prince of the blood, or of banishment from the court of his country. But apparently the King does not contemplate taking any such stern measures, and has contented himself with placing him on the retired list of the army.

Prince Aage, it is said, will not return to Denmark, but will divide his time between Italy, where his wife, although a native of Turin, belongs to one of the families of the old Genoese patriciate, and Morocco, where he proposes to go in for ranching and agriculture on an extensive scale. In fact, in this respect the example of his dead mother's only surviving brother, Prince Jean of Orleans, Duc de Guise, who has acquired an immense tract of land in this new dependency of France, is being followed. Prince Aage has all a taste for agriculture. In fact, Prince Aage's younger brother, Erik, is now studying scientific agriculture on a large farm in Oxfordshire, owned by one of that gentleman's former class, which he has been seen to such advantage as in England.

Trustees of University Decide Against Asking Gift for Y. M. C. A. Building.

Governor Craig Expresses Regret at Recent Lynching of Negro.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
[Richmond, Va., January 28.]—After a spirited discussion of the subject the trustees of the University of North Carolina in annual session today decided not to take any action as to petitioning for $50,000 from the Carnegie fund for the building of the Y. M. C. A. building at the university, but made it clear that in the event the students could not obtain the desired sum, the trustees would have no objection to the Carnegie fund, then the board will have committed this trust to the trustees of the Carnegie fund, leaving these men to decide whether or not to make the donation.

Governor Craig brought to the attention of the board the disturbed conditions in Athens, Ga., where the University of Georgia is located, and a general discussion of the subject was held. The trustees decided to have nothing to do with the control of the college sports, leaving these matters to the faculty.

Acting President Graham's report for the past year showed the largest enrollment in the history of the university, and the trustees decided to have nothing to do with the control of the college sports, leaving these matters to the faculty.

The Superior Court is in the midst of the trial of the damage suit of H. C. Hake, of this city, against the Southern Railway Company for $5,000 damages for being forcibly ejected from a train because of his refusal to pay for a ticket. The case is being heard by Judge J. W. H. Hake, who is the brother of the plaintiff.

Governor Craig said this morning that with all good citizens, he regrets the lynching of Jim Wilson at Johnston County, yesterday. Had the law been allowed to take its course judgment would have been rendered before the lynching, and the whole people would have been benefited by the action.

The most romantic of the Deringers was, undoubtedly, however, the late George Edward Dering, a cousin of Herbert Dering, and of the present holder of the baronetcy. He used to be known as the Hermit of Welwyn; and while he spent a portion of the year in the strictest seclusion, under his own name, at Lockleys Hall, his fine old country seat, at Welwyn, in Hertfordshire, he was regarded throughout the country as an eccentric.

What was the proper name of the Dering family, and who, coming to the name of Dering, which he lived the remainder of the year, under the name of George Dale, at 7 Walsingham Terrace, Brighton, with his wife, of humble origin, who was known as Mrs. Dale, and who, completely ignorant of her true name, occurred only a few months before his own, was totally unaware of his identity with George Edward Dering, of Lockleys Hall.

Nor had his wife, nor yet the daughter, who had been married as Miss Rosa Dale, to a man of the name of Neall, had inherited all his property in Hertfordshire, his estates in County Galway, and in the County of Kent, going to some cousins of the name of Haslewood and Majendie respectively.

Indeed, it was not until his will was opened that it was found that his daughter Rosa, who had been married as Miss Rosa Dale, to a man of the name of Neall, had inherited all his property in Hertfordshire, his estates in County Galway, and in the County of Kent, going to some cousins of the name of Haslewood and Majendie respectively.

By a strange coincidence, Walter Besant, in his so widely known novel, "The Dering Family," made the theme of this book a great hero, a hero possessing one half of his estate, an ultra-respectable family lawyer, and the remainder as "Edward Dering," who was his antithesis in character, and painted in such black colors, that it is fortunate that the real Edward Dering never saw the book, otherwise he would probably have sued Besant for slander.

Site for New Post-Office.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Manassas, Va., January 28.—W. P. Tinsley, site agent of the United States government, arrived in Manassas this morning for the purpose of receiving information in regard to buying ground which is to be used for the erection of a new post-office building here. Several meetings with citizens were held on Monday, and twenty odd pieces of property were offered for sale, among them being three very desirable lots, near the center of the town. Within ten days Mr. Tinsley will make his report to the government, and the property will be decided upon.

The appropriation made for the site is $10,000, and another one will be necessary for the erection of the building.

Easy Way to Remove Objectionable Hairs
(Beauty Culture)
Progressive beauty specialists are rapidly adopting the new, painless method for removing superfluous hairs, and the result is that the costly and painful electric needle treatment is fast being discarded. The treatment is inexpensive and very simple—just make a paste with a little of the powdered delatone and water and apply to hairy surface. After two or three minutes rub off and with it comes every trace of hair. Washing leaves the skin firm and spotless. No more, however, that you get the real delatone. (Adv.)

SPEAKERS CHOSEN FOR W. & M. FINALS

Bishop Tucker, Superintendent Joyner and Howard R. Bayne on Program.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
[Williamsburg, Va., January 28.—Dr. John C. Calloun, chairman of the committee of the William and Mary faculty in charge of the annual speakers for the finals next June, announces that the following well-known men will be here: Bishop Beverly D. Tucker, of Norfolk, who will preach the baccalaureate sermon; James Y. Joyner, Superintendent of Public Instruction of North Carolina, will deliver the educational address; Howard R. Bayne, of New York, former Virginia member of the New York State Senate, and lawyer, will deliver the baccalaureate address. All these speakers are widely known, and will make the 1914 finals especially attractive. Other details of the commencement exercises will be announced later.

Examinations at William and Mary, which began last week, will close on Saturday. It is announced that students are doing good work, and that indications are that few will be dropped from the roll on account of low average.

This is the warmest January day on record in Williamsburg, the thermometer at 3 o'clock registering 67 degrees in the shade out of doors.

TO ATTRACT AMERICANS.
Big Sum Spent Yearly by Canada to Exploit Resources of Dominion.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Washington, January 28.—A Canadian lobby, which yearly spent vast sums to induce American farmers over the border into Canada, disclosed to-day before the Senate Lobby Investigation Committee.

George A. Joslyn, president of the Western Newspaper Union, of Omaha, Neb., testified that the Canadian government had paid his organization $42,000 annually to exploit the Dominion in small farm papers.

Will J. White, representative of the Canadian Department of the Interior, said the Bureau expended by his government to induce immigration at $70,000 annually. Courtland Smith, of New York, took issue with White. He stated that in reality over $250,000 annually had been used.

Eight hundred thousand Americans have been attracted to Canada by this means during the past ten years.
